

J O S E P H F O R D

Domain

The lights go out in buildings. Rooms revolve into the dark side of the earth.
Small stranded glints and most streetlights resolve to hold the lines for all they're worth.